16 The United States of America, by its counsel, Karen P. Hewitt, United States Attorney, and 17 Mitchell D. Dembin, Assistant United States Attorney, hereby responds to and opposes the Defendant's 18 Motion for Downward Departures.

19 I

20 STATEMENT OF FACTS

21 In around mid-March, 2007, the defendant decided to break into the offices of his former 22 employer, The Imperial Group. For financial reasons, the defendant decided that he had to determine 23 what The Imperial Group had bid on a project to build and manage a facility for the Department of 24 Homeland Security, Immigration and Customs Enforcement, in El Centro. The defendant's company
 25 also had submitted a bid to the United States General Services Administration on the project.

26 By March 23, 2007, the defendant convinced his son to join him in the crime. From the accounts 27 of both the defendant and his son, the defendant was the moving force and his son was a reluctant 28 participant. On the 23rd, with the defendant's son standing guard, the defendant went into the building

1 where the offices of The Imperial Group was housed for what they both considered to be a practice run.
2 During the practice run, the defendant confirmed that the door to the janitorial closet was unlocked and 3 removed a key that he confirmed would open the doors to The Imperial Group's offices. He also 4 confirmed that he could lock the stairway door leading to the floor on which The Imperial Group was 5 located so that anyone wishing to access that floor had to use the elevator. It was the elevator that was 6 being covered by the defendant's son.

7 During the week leading up to Easter Sunday, the defendant called the offices of his former 8 employer and asked questions regarding the weekend plans of his former colleagues. Unbeknownst to 9 the defendant, his practice run of March 23 was noticed by a janitorial supervisor who routinely
10 reviewed security camera tapes to confirm the activities of the janitorial staff. The janitorial supervisor
11 recognized the defendant and thought his conduct odd enough to warrant warning The Imperial Group.
12 Based upon that warning, The Imperial Group installed surveillance cameras in its offices and removed 13 the bid book for the ICE facility from its offices.

14 On Easter Sunday, April 8, the defendant again entered the building and took the elevator to the 15 floor housing the offices of The Imperial Group. The defendant's son waited downstairs watching the 16 front door and the elevator. They remained in constant cell phone contact. Arriving at the right floor, 17 the defendant walked toward the janitorial closet carrying a cleaning pail and covering his face with a 18 piece of cardboard. He maneuvered himself under the security camera and taped its lens. Following 19 his earlier plan, he likely then locked the stairway door and obtained the key from the janitorial closet.
20 He used the key to enter the offices of The Imperial Group without authority and was captured by The 21 Imperial Group's surveillance system. He was observed rummaging through files with a flashlight stuck 22 in his teeth and reporting his progress to his son by cell phone. Unable to locate the bid book, the 23 defendant took a set of plans for the proposed ICE building and left.

24 A federal search warrant was obtained for the defendant's offices. During the execution of the 25 warrant, the defendant and his son were interviewed. After some initial prevarications, both confessed.
26 Hiring attorneys, both defendants approached this office for pre-indictment discussions. Those 27 discussions resulted in the instant plea of the defendant and a deferred entry of plea for his then 33 year
28

1 old son who, based on the available evidence, acted only to try and protect his father after failing to 2 dissuade him from his criminal course of action.

4 THE DEPARTURES RECOMMENDED BY THE DEFENDANT ARE NOT WARRANTED

5 Although presented as a single departure based upon circumstances not covered by the 6 Sentencing Guidelines, the gravamen of the defendant's motion is that his conduct should be considered
7 aberrant and that he accepted responsibility in an extraordinary manner. Each of these will be discussed 8 below.

9 A. The Defendant's Conduct is not Aberrant Under the Advisory Guidelines

10 The defendant planned this crime over a period of weeks. He engaged in a practice run and 11 made a pretext call to his victim to confirm that the offices would be empty. Worst of all, he convinced 12 his reluctant son to join him in the endeavor. Consequently, this is far from an impulsive act and cannot 13 be considered aberrant under Section 5K2.20(b).

14 The defendant is correct that this is his first offense and represents a marked deviation from an 15 otherwise law-abiding life. That is true but would apply equally to every first offender that appears 16 before the Court. The fact that this offense required significant planning, including a practice run, and 17 required the defendant to convince another to join him mitigates strongly against this departure.

18 B. The Defendant's Acceptance of Responsibility Was Extraordinary

19 There was going to be no question that the defendant was going to be debarred from bidding on 20 GSA contracts in the future. The defendant was importuned, however, by the United States to work
21 with GSA to unravel any of his standing projects with GSA. The defendant did avail himself of this 22 suggestion and did save GSA time and effort in identifying contracts in which the defendant had an 23 interest and undertaking the administrative proceedings to remove the defendant from these contracts.
24 The advisory Guidelines address extraordinary assistance in a related context at Section 3E1.1(b). The 25 United States does not object to an additional point in the form of a downward departure for the 26 defendant's extraordinary assistance consistent with what would have been accorded had the defendant's 27 base offense level been level 16. The United States does not agree that 2 points are warranted.
